

Camila Sánchez Senior Associate

Camila holds a law degree from Universidad San Francisco de Quito, an LL.M. from Georgetown University, and a specialization in European and Spanish competition law from the Instituto de Estudios Bursátiles in Madrid. Camila has extensive experience in competition law, advising on all aspects of this field, including cartel investigations, abuse of dominant position, merger control, and other anticompetitive practices. In addition, she provides preventive counsel to her clients on the application of competition law, developing and overseeing tailored compliance programs.

With international experience working at the law firm Cuatrecasas in the Competition and European Union department in Madrid, as well as at the United States Federal Trade Commission, Camila enhances her practice with a global and sophisticated approach to analyzing and resolving complex competition law and antitrust issues. This experience has allowed her to develop a strategic vision and deep understanding of the interactions between European and United States competition regulations.

Her experience spans a wide range of sectors, including consumer goods, pharmaceuticals, retail, agribusiness, transportation, construction, and technology, among others. Throughout her career, she has advised clients on the notification of merger transactions before the Superintendency of Economic Competition, the Spanish competition authority (CNMC), and the European Commission, as well as on merger control filings in other jurisdictions.
