

Javier Nicolás Solórzano Valencia

Associate

Javier has over three years of experience in insurance, commercial, and corporate law, with a focus on providing comprehensive legal advice to regulated companies, including those in the healthcare industry. At BUSTAMANTE FABARA, he has managed end-to-end administrative procedures before public entities (notaries, ministries, superintendencies, and various regulatory bodies), including formal written consultations, oversight and management of administrative proceedings, and the preparation of legal and technical reports, memoranda, and other required documentation.

His practice includes drafting and negotiating contracts, agreements, and memoranda of understanding; monitoring judicial proceedings and responding to official communications—whether the client is a party to the case or not—by coordinating timely responses with internal teams; comprehensive notarial management (execution of public deeds, sworn statements, signature authentications, purchase and lease agreements, margin annotations) through a trusted network of notaries; and the preparation of corporate books and maintenance of clients’ corporate records. In the commercial and corporate field, he assists clients in negotiations with suppliers and counterparties, closing contracts and agreements with a focus on efficiency, risk mitigation, and regulatory compliance. He provides specialized advice in corporate, commercial, contractual, and administrative law, supporting clients in their day-to-day business operations with practical solutions aligned with business objectives, internal policies, and compliance frameworks—particularly relevant for clients operating in the healthcare sector.

He is also an expert in advising clients in the healthcare, prepaid medicine, and pharmaceutical industries, offering an integrated approach that combines technical knowledge, regulatory insight, and practical experience in risk management and regulatory compliance within these highly regulated sectors.

He has supported the firm’s corporate and litigation practices and focuses part of his work on insurance and prepaid medicine, with experience handling and monitoring administrative claims before the Superintendence of Companies, Securities, and Insurance; responding to inquiries on direct claims; and managing settlements with end clients through transactional agreements.

His experience at the Administrative Litigation Chamber of the National Court of Justice, together with his master's degree in Business Law (expected completion: June 2025), strengthen his expertise in administrative law, data protection, compliance, and business law.
